Title:	Light in adversity
Picture:
Caption:	There is always light. Sun shines everywhere and hope is always there.
Commentary:	Sunshine, usually gives people a sign of hope, a new start and a new life. This photo which snapshotted outside the Duchess of Kent Children's Hospital, located in Sandy Bay was also a proof that “hope” always stays around us, especially the patients living in the hospital. Sometimes we may see this photo as the sunshine is hiding from the building. But on the other hand, if we look at it from a different angle, we could see that the sun is lighting us. The signal of the sun inspires us that we should always be looking things in a different perspective. When we encounter difficulties, we should not be so stubborn and pessimistic but try to think positively. It also tells us that not to afraid of the darkness, there is always sunshine after darkness and eventually they will be a way out. Disasters, like tsunami, volcano eruption and earthquake, result in thousands of victims and casualties in the affected area. They also destruct the homeland of many people and the habitat of the wildlife species. Perhaps for many of us, we will consider such natural disasters as punishment from God. Nonetheless, this accusation is groundless. People often think that darkness and adversity have arrived, and our mother Earth will soon be eradicated. But, why should people be such pessimistic? There is always a solution, a light for the adversity. Corresponding to the photo, even there is an obstacle, light still shines brightly, and with hope. So, as long as we try it out, nothing is impossible.

This photo inspires us to be optimistic towards life. As sunshine is always there, we should find the way out and to be persistent. We should be brave to fight against the misfortunes. In recent days, teenagers consider committing suicidal without contemplation, and this kind of attitude should be discouraged indeed. Hopefully the above snapshot could inspire them.
